

Preface

This special edition is devoted to the investigation of materials and materials processing technologies in construction.

Mechanical properties of structural steels, technologies of concrete production and analysis of various concrete properties, plywood production, sand dewatering, green building materials based on solid waste from industry and natural materials, etc. are investigated in articles of this collection.

The special edition will be useful to specialists in construction and building materials production.